

Table of Contents

---

Foreword . . . . .	xiii
Patrick MANNING
Introduction. . . . .	xv
Shingo MINAMIZUKA
World History Teaching in China: Past, Present, and Future . . . . .	1
ZHANG Weiwei
Teaching World History in China: Shanghai's History Curriculum and Textbook Reforms . . . . .	23
YANG Biao
Restoring and Celebrating the Contributions of Diverse Peoples to the History of Humankind: Changes and Issues of the Middle School World History Curriculum in the Republic of Korea. . . . .	34
Sun Joo KANG
The Evolution of World History Education in Japan . . . . .	54
Satoshi IBARAKI
World History Teaching in Japanese Secondary Education. . . . .	76
Shigeki YOSHIMINE
Teaching World History in Vietnam: Innovation and the Real Situation . . . . .	91
TA Thi Thuy and DANG Xuan Khang
Teaching World History in the Philippines: History, Contents, Contexts, and Textbooks . . . . .	105
Francis A. GEALOGO
Diffusionism in World History Teaching in Indonesia, 1950–2006. . . . .	124
Agus SUWIGNYO
World History Education in Singapore . . . . .	141
SIM Yong Huei and Chelva RAJAH S. N.
Teaching World History in Secondary Schools: The Indian Model . . . . .	168
Satyanarayana ADAPA

World History Teaching in Asia

Addendum: How the Opium Wars are Described in World
History Textbooks in Asia. . . . . 186
Shingo Minamizuka

Acknowledgements . . . . . 201
Contributors. . . . . 203
Index. . . . . 205